To the PublishAmerica Author Support Team:

On May 27th of this year, and again on May 28th, I asked you to please stop sending me emails soliciting me to buy my own book. Since then I have received twelve (12) such emails. Your web site makes the claim that "We want your book, not your money." So why do you keep urging me to buy my own book when I have told you I will not do so and have asked you to stop?

Once again, please stop sending me solicitations to buy my book. If you really want my book to sell, try doing some marketing yourselves, like a "traditional publisher" does. If you are not going to do that (and by now, I think it is clear that you will not), then please cancel my contract and let's both get on with our lives.

May God bless,

Don Davidson
